Counselor's Corner...

Hello Birmingham Families! I have enjoyed watching your children grow, both in academics and in character, over the last few months and I am looking forward to seeing where they will be by the end of the year. We will continue to grow their character when we start to focus on our next set of Wylie Way Core Values; Grit and Preparation starting in January. We will celebrate the Day of Grit on January 20th with lessons and activities. This is also our first half day of 2016. I hope everyone enjoys their Christmas Break and we will see you all in the New Year!

Bear Love, Mrs. Ray

From the Library...

It's hard to believe 2015 is almost over! But we still have time to read!! Take time over the break to read to and read with your Bear. Even the strongest readers enjoy being read to – and it's a great chance to spend some one-on-one time that is meaningful. For some of our older readers, it's fun to read a book that they've just finished and talk about it with them. Share your favorite parts, tell them where you are in the book (but don't let them give away the ending!), and have them recommend another of their favorite books to you. It's a great way to model an important skill, and it builds a special bond with your child when you share in their interests. And don't forget – books make GREAT gifts!!

I wish each of you a very merry Christmas and a wonderful New Year! See you in 2016!

Happy Reading! Mrs. West
